P R E F A C E.

I CANNOT help making some apology for the intrusion of this piece, especially as the main object of it, (Encouraging a love of Learning and Reading in the minds of children) is excited by such rewards and punishments, as have been unjustly condemned, but without maturely weighing the matter.

WHATEVER stimulates children to a love of Virtue or Learning, ought to be applied. The experienced Physician will gild the pill, not on the eye, but to take the nau-
